Overview Program Description

A small group (5 minimum, 8 maximum), 100-hour course offering 'Science, Art, and Craft of Renewable Wisdom Trails' is forming and will be starting in the Fall.

There will be 50 hours of teachings and trainings in the Oral science and art, and a minimum of 50 hours self-practicing assignments or tasks of the Oral craft.

The course will be delivered in the ways of the ancestors in the Oral Tradition and consist of teachings, storytelling, participation in assignments with nature out on the land, sharing, and establishing connection to ancestors through personalized herbal remedies. The program will remain in fluid motion with participants.

The outcome will not be a diploma, certificate, or title, but will instead be measured only by your own integration of the knowledge and guidelines, accountability with your Creator, and willingness to access the Great Mystery.

Using a Renewable Wisdom lens, our current lifetime behaviors and environmental changes can be traced by how they are passed down through all our ancestors and experienced through our lineages to place, time, and imprinting.

The passing on of Renewable Wisdom includes the basic tenet that we are made of the Earth and not separate from it. We will be walking in this way for the purpose of healing ourselves to get back to original knowing, so that our true mother, Mother Earth, can be in balance with us. We strive to find the knowing and work within guidelines of a transition zone to best avoid the extremes, as is so common in our current societies. We will work within a verb taxonomy, not a locked down noun-based taxonomy, so that we can be in a full co-creation with nature.

Renewable Wisdom Trails is an offering of vast and ancient knowledge passed from Elders in my tradition, as well as others. It is a portal into the realm of the ancestors, an alive and open space of exploration. Inside this place of long-lived wisdom is a bridge between linear ways of thinking and more intuitive forms of accessing inner knowing. What is encountered is not so much

As a comparison, in the scientific world, this is called by a recent branch of research called Epigenetics. Epigenetics is the study of how behavior and environment can cause changes that affect the way human genes work. In a simple sense, Epigenetic changes are like light switches; they do not change your DNA sequence but can change how your body reads a DNA sequence.

As part of this course, everyone will have a custom herbal remedy crafted and initiated according to your personal lineage lines and be working with it throughout the course.

We will be using these epigenetic trans-generational herbal remedies as part of the Oral teaching path as a reference point for relatedness within the teaching circle.

There has never been a more obvious inflection point as to the direction that humankind, both as individuals and collectively, if the rate of all resource consumption does not return into balance. Is this balance possible? There is no known answer, but our ability to participate in the ancient ways that is at cause for balance, certainly is possible.

The course-work itself is very personalized in an alchemy, yet one that works for the circle. The course price includes a 90 day-monitoring period that goes beyond the 100-hour course time.

It also includes personalized intake session, customized epigenetic herbal remedy to the participants lineages and the skillset to work in the dreamtime, and the follow-up of ceremonial relatedness in nature as well as any necessary healing work that might be required during class.

All linages, ancestral lines, and belief systems are welcome in participation. If you are drawn to this offering explore more details on the educational syllabus and substance of the course work. Contact us as early as possible for registration and exchange.

“how-to” linear teachings, but an ancestral flow of wisdom gained by keen observation and recognition of the natural world.

We enter this primordial place by learning to relate the entirety of our being as part of Nature, not separate from it. Through this portal it is possible to access the wisdom at the center of one’s incarnation..and touch into and be touched by what bonds us together as a family with All Our Relations.

What has been handed down to me is essentially a responsibility to watch over the pattern of daily life and detail ceremonial observations whereby each of us can become conscious of the critically important role we play as part of Nature. The Oral Tradition I have walked with is about living in full kinship with all species contained in the natural world as part of our human experience.

Our extended family of plants, animals, minerals, the land and sky, are part of our evolution on Mother Earth, and we theirs. The natural ecological cycles they co-habit can then be replenished by the trails we choose to live because we seek their permission to be part of them as they are part of us. Simple to say, but a whole other way to experience our existence on Earth.

Assisting: Sue Spielman aka Dreamweaver (European/ Asia Minor/ Mediterranean/ Mestizo)

Sue “Dreamweaver” Spielman, a long-time apprentice, friend and colleague who has walked these trails with me, is the main knowledge keeper of this Natural Science of Oral Teachings.

She will be assisting in a range of activities throughout this course that can take the form of being part of a circle; participating in ceremony; roundtable discussions, ongoing teaching courses, etc. The main dedication of these activities is to support access to your incarnational journey by integrating this wisdom into your lifestyle, and/or deepening into further exploration.

It is a fluid wisdom, in constant adaptation to the extraordinary movement in our world. If a requirement exists in walking these Trails, it is to have the intent to come back – again and again – to one’s natural state, the very essence of renewable wisdom.
